

Learn about Nanotechnology at NanoDays

Explore the growing world of nanotechnology at the Saint Louis Science Center

If you have ever been curious about nanotechnology and nanoscale science and engineering then the Saint Louis Science Center is the place for you to be April 23-24, 2010.

Experience a large expo filled with exhibitors from local and regional research centers, hands-on activities, NANO movies, NANO presenters, and much more. The Science Center will showcase an all new amazing NANO demonstration as well as new interactives at Cyberville's NANO center.

Exciting hands-on activities will get you excited about the growing field of nanotechnology. Don't miss out on this unforgettable look into what could be the future of science.

NanoDays is presented in partnership with NISE Net, the Nanotechnology Informal Science Education Network. For more information, contact Dr. Chris Roman at croman@slsc.org.